

٣٣٣. وَقَالَ (عَلَيْهِ السَّلَامُ) فِي صِفَةِ الْمُؤْمِنِ: الْمُؤْمِنُ بِشْرُهُ فِي وَجْهِهِ وَحُزْنُهُ فِي قَلْبِهِ أَوْسَعُ شَيْءٍ صَدْرًا وَأَذَلُّ شَيْءٍ نَفْسًا يَكْرَهُ الرِّفْعَةَ وَيُشْتَأُ السَّمْعَةَ طَوِيلَ غَمِّهِ بَعِيدَ هَمِّهِ كَثِيرَ صَمْتِهِ مَشْغُولَ وَقْتِهِ شَكُورَ صَبُورٍ مَغْمُورٍ بِفِكْرَتِهِ ضَمِينٌ بِخَلَاتِهِ سَهْلَ الْخَلِيقَةِ لَيْنَ الْعَرِيكَةِ نَفْسَهُ أَصْلَبَ مِنَ الصَّلْدِ وَهُوَ أَذَلُّ مِنَ الْعَبْدِ.

333. Amīr al-mu'minīn, peace be upon him, said describing a believer: A believer has a cheerful face, a sorrowful heart, a very broad chest (full of generosity), and a very humble heart. He hates high position and dislikes renown. His grief is long, his courage is far-reaching, his silence is much and, his time is occupied. He is grateful, enduring, buried in his thoughts, sparing in his friendship (with others), of bright demeanour and of soft temperament. He is stronger than stone but humbler than a slave.
